He took strong ground against the organization of a naval reserve, his comments being construed by some of the Senators into a redection upon volunteer soldiers and land militia.

Half a dozen Senators were on their feet in an instant to defend the volunteers and the National Guard of the various States, and the debate took so wide a range that Senators went back in their references to the days of the revolutionary war to seek illustrations for their arguments.

himself to be a salesman of the C. F. Blanke Tea and Coffee Company, has been successfully operating in small Indiana and Kentucky towns during the last three weeks. It is estimated that since commencing his frauds, the man has secured upwards of $450 from merchants, hotel-keepers and private individuals.

According to the information in possession of Mr. Blanke, the man enters a town with sample cases and the usual paraphernalia of a traveling salesman, and takes rooms at the best hotel. His plan is to immediately get friendly with the hotelkeeper. This done, he visits merchants and takes their orders for coffee. After the order is taken the bogus salesman represents that he is just out of cash, and asks his customer to kindly indorse a check for him.

The check is then presented to the hotelkeeper, who cashes it rendily. It is thought that the same man has been involved in all the frauds. Though different names have been signed to the checks, the writing is the same, and all the descriptions given tally. The police in Indiana and Kentucky have been unable to find any trace of the thief.
